The History of Boca Raton

The meaning of the name Boca Raton has always aroused curiosity. Many people wrongly assume the name is simply Rat's Mouth. The Spanish word boca (or mouth) often described an inlet, while raton (literally mouse) was used as a term for a cowardly thief. But the "Thieves Inlet," Boca Ratones, appeared on eighteenth century maps associated with an inlet in the Biscayne Bay area of Miami. By the beginning of the nineteenth century, the term was mistakenly applied to Lake Boca Raton, whose inlet was closed at the time. The "s" and later the "e" were dropped from this title by the 1920s, yet the correct pronunciation remains Rah-tone.

The earliest known inhabitants of the Boca Raton area were the Tequesta Indians, who lived in communities near the ocean as long ago as one thousand years until the eighteenth century. The construction of the Florida East Coast Canal (today's Intracoastal) and the Florida East Coast Railway in the 1890s made the region accessible to a group of resourceful pioneers. By the early 1900s Boca Raton was a tiny agricultural community, many of the farmers specializing in pineapple cultivation. Amongst these were a group of Japanese immigrants under the leadership of Joseph Sakai, who formed a community along today's Yamato Road in 1904.

In May of 1925, the Town of Boca Raton was incorporated at the height of the Florida land boom. The town council commissioned noted society architect Addison Mizner to plan a world-class resort community. His exclusive hotel, known as the Cloister Inn, was completed in 1926 and continues its reign as a city landmark as the Boca Raton Resort and Club. Although many of Mizner's plans for the young community were squelched by the demise of the land boom in 1926, a few survive today—and his architectural style continues to influence the city.

One of Mizner's projects was a design for a city hall for Boca Raton. Completed by Delray architect William Alsmeyer in 1927, Old Town Hall at 71 North Federal Highway still bears the original footprint of the Mizner design, and was constructed using ironwork, tile, and woodwork supplied by Mizner Industries. Today the restored Town Hall is the home of the Boca Raton Historical Society.

In the 1930s and 40s, Boca was known for its winter vegetable crop, particularly the green beans which commanded a premium in northern markets. In 1942, the Army Air Corps established its only war-time radar training school at the site of what is today F.A.U. and the Boca Raton Airport. The facility brought over 30,000 servicemen as well as families and civilian employees to the tiny community of Boca Raton, with a population of 723 in 1940.

In the 1950s, the still small town played host to a safari park called Africa USA which opened where the Camino Gardens development stands now. E. G. Barnhill offered an attraction called Ancient America on the site of prehistoric burial mounds on U.S. One in the area of today's Sanctuary neighborhood. The Winter Bible Conference Grounds—Bibletown—was established in buildings of the former Air Field.

In the 1960s, South Florida experienced another great land boom, with developments pushing the Everglades and former farmlands increasingly westward. The population grew to almost 30,000 residents by 1970, continuing to increase well outside city limits to this day. In 1962, Boca Raton attracted the newest state university, Florida Atlantic, to the site of the old army airbase. IBM moved one of its computer facilities to Boca Raton in 1967, and in 1981, it was there the first IBM PC, or personal computer, was developed.

During the 1980s and 1990s, the city focused much of its attention on downtown redevelopment, and a number of important historical properties, such as Boca Raton's original Town Hall and F.E.C. Railway Station were restored and opened to the public. Many fine cultural facilities, such as the Boca Raton Museum of Art, have grown up to meet the needs of the growing population.

By 2009, the City had 86,396 residents in addition to the over 125,500 people who reside in West Boca, the unincorporated area west of the city. Boca Raton is the core of the south Palm Beach County metropolitan community, offering beautiful parks and facilities, economic opportunities, and a unique quality of life.

Geographically the City encompasses 29.6 square miles (18,572 acres) and provides police services, fire-rescue services, municipal services (sanitation, roads, and traffic and animal control), recreation services (parks, beaches, golf courses, tennis courts, a library and a municipal swimming pool), and utility services (water, wastewater, storm water and reclaimed water). Boca Raton is known nationally and internationally as an originator in the area of comprehensive zoning. Both the low density, i.e. dwelling units per acre, character of the City and the innovative Park of Commerce Industrial Park have influenced development around the country. The sign code, which was initiated in the late 1960s, gives the City a unique look with minimal commercial intrusion into landscaping and streetscapes.

Our City is enjoying the results of the economic expansion of the 1990s. After weathering the economic storms of the 1980s and the loss of a major employer, the City has seen a steady increase in its industrial base. Boca Raton has become a Mecca for innovative computer development, using a well-educated, computer literate community as its base. Because of its initiative, the City has reaped the benefits of effective land use planning -- a stable tax base with increasing property values.

Do you know where the name Boca Raton comes from?

If you think it means "rat's mouth," think again! The name is derived from an old Spanish expression referring to an inlet where pirates hid for safety: "Boca" meaning inlet and "Raton" was an expression for "thief." Now, this does not mean that there were pirates hiding out in the Boca Raton inlet. In fact, maps from the 1890's, and earlier show that there was no inlet. It has been and still is dredged to keep the waters deep enough for boats to travel through.

So why do we have the name Boca Raton? In 1823 a map maker (or cartographer) was making a map of our region and he mistakenly labeled our city Boca des Ratonnes. There was a Boca de Ratonnes in Key Biscayne that looks very much like our region. It was a simple mistake that he labeled Boca des Ratonnes 45 miles north of Key Biscayne.

Over the years, the "des" and the "s" from Ratonnes were dropped. Addison Mizner was responsible for dropping the "e" at the end of Raton.

NOW TO PRONUNCIATION

Many have wondered how to accurately pronounce the city's name. To help them, former City Attorney M.A. Galbraith penned this ode in the form of a resolution:

Bo ka' Ra ton'

From "Boca de Ratonnes," a quaint Spanish name,
Came "Boca Ratone" when the settlers came.
The "e" was discarded, and then it became
Just "Boca Raton." Now who can we blame?
The sound of "Raton" has not quite been the same.

"I've had it with short 'o,'" said Councilman Mac,
"It grates on my ear and it throws me off track.
There must be a means for us to fight back,
Proclaim the Right Way, and counterattack!"

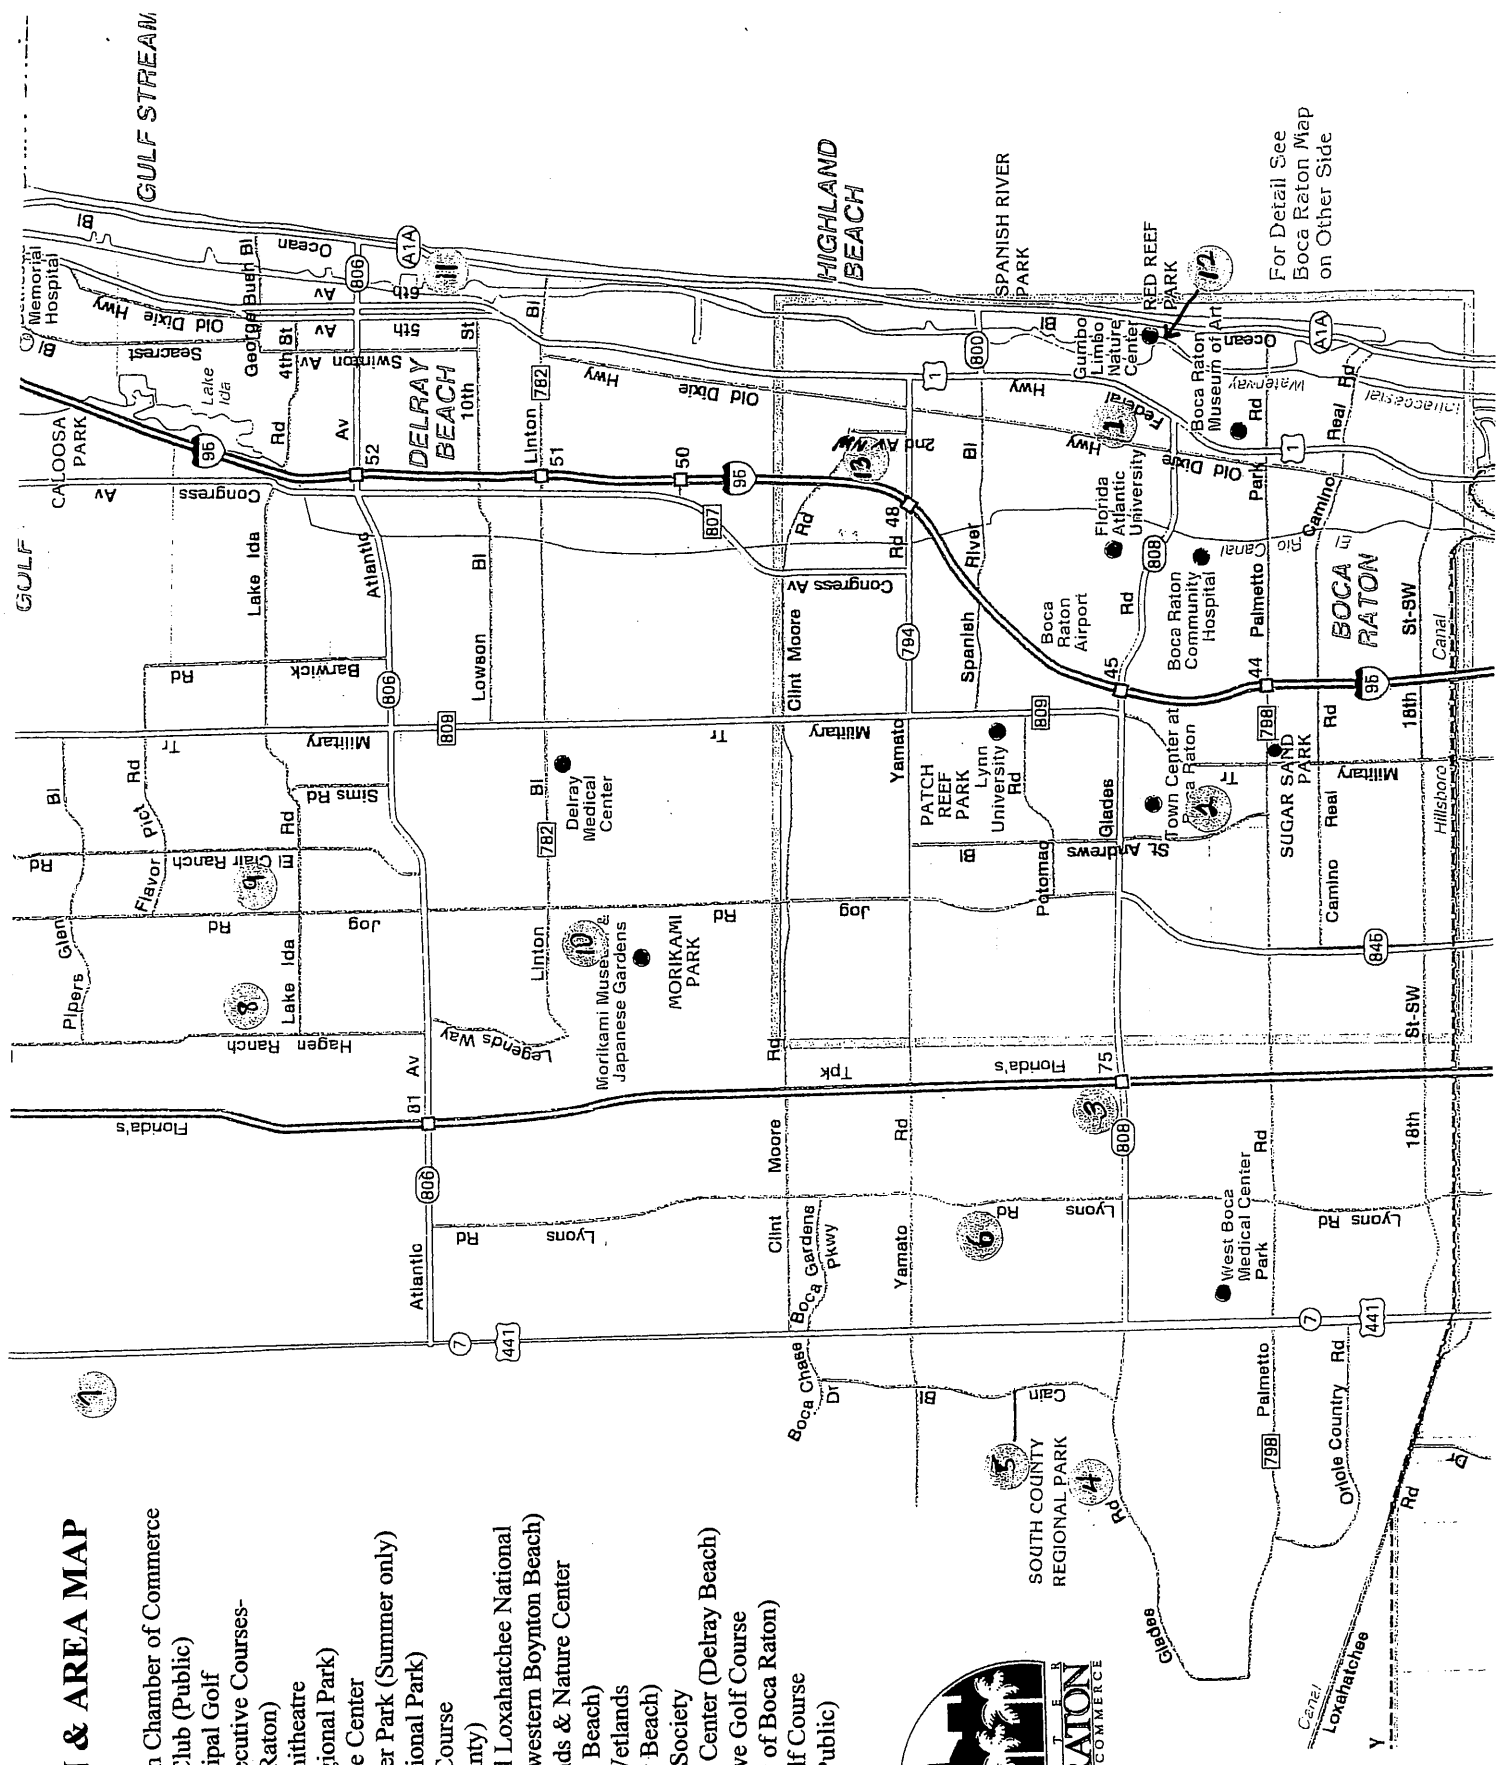

Now banned is short "o" as in con or baton,
Or Parthenon, Rubicon, Johnny or Ron.
The "o" in Raton's not like "a" in pecan.
We'll condone only "o" as in valedictorian.

And shunned is the "o" like a "u" as in son,
Or Washington, Arlington, London or none.
We want a long "o." In fact, two, for fun,
Put one in each half of the name and we're done.

Hereafter, forever, let's let it be known
To tourists and purists: "If you should intone
The name of the city of Boca Raton,
Please give it long 'o' as in Old San Antone,
Or pinecone, or corn pone, postpone and rezone."

A FEW SITES TO SEE IN THE AREA

The Arthur R. Marshall Loxahatchee National Wildlife Refuge (10216 Lee Road, Boynton Beach, FL 33437 (561) 732-3684 / north of Atlantic Ave. and south of Boynton Beach Blvd. on the west side of SR 7/Route 441 – look for brown sign) located within the northernmost part of the legendary Florida Everglades, is the only remnant of the northern Everglades. The 147,392-acre Refuge consists mostly of the saw grass marsh that is so characteristic of the Everglades environment, and is one of the few places where lucky observers might see a magnificent bird, the endangered snail kite, searching for food.

While the Refuge and the Marshall Foundation are separate entities, the organizations often work together on restoration and public outreach projects. Numerous Marshall Foundation events have been hosted at the Refuge and the Foundation is extremely supportive of the vital role the Refuge plays in preserving the Everglades ecosystem and educating Florida's future environmental stewards. The inviting public-use areas at the Refuge provide viewing opportunities for a large variety of wetland flora and fauna.

Currently under construction at the Refuge is a brand-new, state-of-the-art administration and Visitor Center, due to be completed in 2008. This $4 million structure will include 11,846 square feet of office and exhibit space. Among the planned displays are a virtual airboat ride, a "night sounds of the Everglades" exhibit and a life-sized alligator hole that visitors will be invited to explore.

Gumbo Limbo Nature Center (1801 N. Ocean Blvd (A1A), Boca Raton, FL 33432 (561) 338-1473 – Located in Red Reef Park on the barrier island between the Atlantic Ocean and the Intracoastal Waterway. Twenty acres of Boca Raton's Red Reef park have been reserved specifically for a nature center and the preservation of a natural plant association known as a tropical hammock. The marine and estuarine location, and the diversity of native vegetation communities found within Red Reef park, also include the coastal dune, a sabal palm hammock and a mangrove wetlands.

Interesting faunal species include a variety of mammals, birds, reptiles and fish. Rare and endangered species such as the manatee, the brown pelican, the osprey and sea turtles can often be observed on or from the facility. Coastal relics like a shell midden from the Pre-Columbian Indians and Pond Apple trees from the original freshwater body (known as the Spanish River) can be seen. A cannon and anchors have also been found on the shore of Red Reef Park. All these assets give Gumbo Limbo a unique blend of living history.

Seawater is pumped directly into our large outdoor aquariums filled with sea turtles, sharks and sting rays as well as representatives of our native marine fauna. The Nature Center includes interpretive displays and visual presentations. There is a butterfly garden, a 40-foot high observation tower and an elevated boardwalk through the hammock and mangrove communities offer unique opportunities for environmental education.

Daggerwing Nature Center – (Located in South County Regional Park in western Boca Raton: Yamato Rd west past SR 7/Rt 441, right on Cain Blvd, right on Park Access Rd)-Closed Mon, Tues-Fri 1:00-4:30, Sat 8:15-4:30, Sun 1:00-4:30 Closed on county holidays, Sundays prior to Monday holidays and Sundays from Memorial Day to Labor Day/ Boardwalk open daily - Sunrise to Sunset (561) 629-8760

Brand new exhibit hall with live animals and interactive exhibits. Elevated boardwalk has two 1/3 mile trails that goes through the swamp to view the abundant plant and animal life (from the walkway and an observation tower) including osprey, woodpeckers, butterflies, endangered wood storks, alligators and bromeliads. Don't miss the Ruddy Daggerwing butterfly fluttering through the trees. Benches are available for those who need to rest. An absolute charm! Call for Special Program Schedules. The Nature Center has terrific nature programs and night walks.

Green Cay Nature Center – (Hagen Ranch Rd: north of Atlantic Ave & Lake Ida Rd / south of Woolbright Rd. on the east side of the road (561) 966-7000) - is the county's newest nature center that overlooks 100 acres of constructed wetland and provides educational opportunities about this unique habitat. The wetland features 1.5 miles of elevated boardwalk featuring interpretive signs about the habitat. The Nature Center includes a lecture hall, gift shop, and live animals in an extensive exhibit room that highlights wetland attributes. Come for a visit and find that there's something for everyone at this fantastic new facility!

A FEW SITES TO SEE IN THE AREA

Visit our live animals in their life-like homes and explore the interactive exhibits as you learn about south Florida and its water resources. Also, stop by the mini-theater where nature videos are played periodically during the day.

The Wakodahatchee Wetlands – (north of Atlantic Ave & Lake Ida Rd / south of Woolbright Rd. on the east side of the road (561) 493-6000) - has attracted an abundant variety of wildlife including turtles, frogs, alligators and birds. More than 140 different species of birds have been spotted at the site. These species thrive in the various wetland zones found at Wakodahatchee Wetlands. The zones were designed for a mixture of habitat types. A three-quarter mile boardwalk winds through three of the wetland's ponds, allowing visitors the opportunity to read interpretive signs and learn about water purification, wetlands ecology, natural history, and the interdependence of people and their environment. Wetlands provide us with a variety of important environmental functions.

Both wetlands have:

- Open pond water areas to attract waterfowl and diving birds
- Emergent marsh areas for rails, moorhens, and sparrows
- Shallow shelves for herons and egrets
- Islands with shrubs and snags to serve as roosting, nesting, and basking sites
- Forested wetland areas for long-term habitat development

Morikami Museum and Japanese Gardens (4000 Morikami Park Rd, Delray Beach, FL 33446 (561) 495-0233 / www.morikami.org – A MUST SEE! Named for George Morikami, the park honors the Yamato Colony, a Japanese farming settlement of the early 1900s while celebrating the living culture of Japan. Norton Museum of Art (1451 South Olive Ave, West Palm Beach, FL 33401 (561) 832-5196 / www.norton.org)

Currently the largest art museum in Florida. The Norton Museum's permanent collection consists of over 5,000 works concentrated in European, American, Chinese, Contemporary art, and Photography. In its latest expansion the Norton Museum's new Gail and Melvin Nessel Wing opened to the public on March 8, 2003. Named for Museum benefactors Gail and Melvin Nessel, the Nessel Wing includes fourteen new galleries, an elegant enclosed courtyard that accommodates a variety of educational and social events, and a glass ceiling installation commissioned from Dale Chihuly.

The Norton Museum of Art announces an extraordinary gift of art from Mrs. George T. (Valerie) Delacorte consisting of more than 65 objects including Old Master, and 19th- and 20th-century paintings, sculpture and works on paper including artists such as Peter Paul Rubens, Rembrandt, Ferdinand Bol, Adriaen Hanneman, Giambattista Tiepolo, J.-B.-C. Corot, Joaquin Sorolla, and Modigliani. This is a transformational gift, making the Norton Museum's collection of Old Master paintings one of the largest and most important in Florida. The remainder of the collection of European art includes excellent examples by artists such as Lucas Cranach the Elder, Joos van Cleve the Elder, Giovanni Bezzi (called Il Nosadella), Valerio Castello, Luca Giordano, and Alessandro Magnasco.

The highly distinguished collection of Chinese art is a perennial favorite with Museum visitors. Many of the Chinese works of art were selected by the Museum's founder, R.H. Norton, with an eye to acquiring the best examples from the most important periods in China's long history.

The Museum's impressive collection of late 19th- and 20th-century American paintings, sculpture, prints, and drawings is one of the strengths and delights of the permanent collection. The Contemporary art collection contains approximately 400 objects from 1970 to the present. Paintings, sculpture, works on paper and glass are all represented. The collection contains works by artists such as Duane Hanson, Deborah Butterfield, Jose Bedia and Alison Saar.

The Museum's exhibition and acquisition programs reflect this remarkable acceptance of the photographic medium with a collection that has grown to more than 2,200 photographs in the last decade. As a result, outstanding photography exhibitions of all genres—from the 19th century to the newest digital works—are available year-round.

I-95 south to Sunrise Blvd. Travel east to North Birch Rd. (one block west of the ocean), turn right.

Whimsical and unconventional. Not to be missed as you will not see a residence like this elsewhere. Designed and built by Frederic Clay Bartlett, Bonnet House is one of the few complete homes and studios of two American artists open to the public. Throughout the main house are murals on the ceilings, faux marble on the walls and floors, and balustrades that are actually paintings. Fish sculptures rise in the air and shells have their own room. The Bartletts' eclectic collections are on display from antique china to turn-of-the-century carousel animals. The art studio consists of unfinished work by Mr. Bartlett. The gallery shows off Mrs. Bartlett's natural flare for the creative in her portraits of friends and her still lifes.

The property consists of 35 acres of a pristine barrier island ecosystem that make up Bonnet House. See one of the finest orchid collections in the U.S., watch the playful monkeys, the majestic swans and wading birds, foxes and an occasional manatee.

Flagler Museum (Cocoanut Row and Whitehall Way, Palm Beach, FL (561) 655-2833 / www.flaglermuseum.us – Take I-95 to Exit 70, (or Florida Turnpike to Exit 99); then east on Okeechobee Blvd., cross over Intracoastal bridge into Palm Beach. Turn left at 1st stop light onto Cocoanut Row. Continue about 4 blocks. Museum and parking on left.

Henry Flagler's winter retreat wedding gift to his wife, Whitehall is a 55-room Beaux Arts estate and Florida's first museum. It was completed in 1902 and was used by the Flagler's until Henry's death in 1913. The estate became a public museum in 1960. The rooms reflect styles such as Louis XIV, Louis XV and Italian Renaissance as well as elements of earlier Western cultures and we melded with the latest American technology. Nineteenth century American innovations such as steel beam construction and cast plaster ceilings allowed workers to complete the Whitehall in only 18 months. Indoor plumbing, central heat and electric lighting made Whitehall a new benchmark of gracious living. The estate also houses Henry Flagler's private railcar, No. 91.

Three-hour docent led tours twice daily at 11:00am and 2:00pm. A narrated audio tour is also available. During the fall and winter visitors may explore the changing exhibit gallery that features temporary exhibits on topics related to Florida history and America's Gilded Age. There are also permanent exhibits on the history of Flagler's life and career, and an extensive lace collection. The fixed-price lunch is wonderful and the restaurant is beautiful. A self-serve café is also available.

Open Tuesday-Saturday from 10:00am to 5:00pm and Sunday from noon-5:00pm. Closed Thanksgiving Day, Christmas, and New Year's Day.
